Hitler's sister; was living in Pravden with her husband as the personal guest of Robert LEI at the time of the Duke of WINDSOR's visit to Germany; she was still there in 1940 and 1941, and was seen less often at the Berghof in recent years; there seems little doubt that she had a row with Hitler; her alleged "middle class instincts" may have been shocked by the some of the lady visitors at the Berghof, especially those little movie queens whom GONERBES brought there.

Made a fetish of good health, and went in for violent exercise; still, would never have done so against doctor's orders, and his sudden death by a stroke seemed strange coming at a time when Germans were retreating; always known as a Nazi general, and may have dared to criticize Hitler, as an old friend of the party; this might have displeased HIMMLER very much; he is ambitious for military power himself and would do everything in his power to get rid of generals that were in his way, whether they were Nazis or not.
